happy (almost) 4th of july! i'm heading off to get ready for my trip next week so i'll return on monday and be blogging from sunny (but cool) san francisco. i'll be posting photos and design tidbits as i go along so stay tuned for some west coast extras in addition to our regular weekly content. until then i wanted to share a weekly wrap up of this week's highlights and- these fantastic tiles from popham design. founded by husband and wife team caitlin and samuel dowe-sandes, popham design produces a seriously incredible line of tiles (oh how i love the chevron tiles), all designed from their studio in marrakech. originally based in LA, the dowe-sandes family dreamed of starting their own design venture and when they moved to northern africa, they decided to make their dreams come true. they now have a beautiful collection of tiles available for sale (my favorites are above and below) and you can view their full collection right here. thanks to caitlin for sending their work over!
